

God's Rules for Life-Exodus 20:1-2

A moral standard only works if we know the God who made it

God gets to make the rules

"He is the authority and is trustworthy to make the rules."

Why do we sometimes run to the "rules" and neglect the relationship?

What if we have "rules" without relationship?

Why is it easier to obey someone if you value them?

How can we show God that we value Him?

Why do we have such trouble honoring authority?

God redeems before we obey

"God gave the 10 commandments not to redeem people but He gave the 10 commandments to a redeemed people"

How would you imagine a life of bondage? Why does he call it a house of bondage?

From what have you been set free? How was this accomplished?

Why does God announce who He is, and their connection to Him before the commandments?

How does obeying (even if we don't feel like it) honor God?
